Information for the author:

In order to facilitate electronic searches of our articles and to help readers who may be scanning our journals or Tables of Contents for articles of interest, we ask that you give special consideration to the following items, should you be asked to revise your paper, or should it be accepted for publication.

Title: The title should accurately and specifically reflect the subject matter addressed in the paper. Do not use mathematical symbols or equations in the title unless absolutely necessary.

Abstract: Abstracts are often reproduced, separate from the body of the article, in review journals and in electronic search facilities. Many readers will decide whether to read your article based on the information contained in the abstract. Thus, the abstract should be brief (250 words or less), but should accurately summarize the contents of the paper. Specifically: indicate the conclusions reached in the paper and the possible applications of the research performed; avoid using mathematical equations; do not cite references by number.

Key words: This list should reflect the main ideas and concepts addressed in the paper.

AMS subject classifications: This list is especially useful to readers engaging in electronic searches. Please give all relevant classifications. These can be found in the annual "Subject Index" of Mathematical Reviews, and can be searched electronically through the American Mathematical Society's World Wide Web server, <http://www.ams.org/>.

TeX Information: If your paper is accepted for publication, SIAM will ask you to supply a LaTeX2E (preferred), TeX, or AMSTeX file for your paper. You will receive more information from SIAM at that time and will be asked to apply SIAM's style macros to your TeX file. For information on SIAM's macros please visit <http://www.siam.org/journals/auth-info.php>. Note that SIAM cannot accept electronic files produced on any other typesetting or word processing system.

Color illustrations: SIAM journals are printed in black and white, with art printed in color only when it is deemed by the editor to be scientifically necessary. If it is your wish or expectation that any of the figures in your paper appear in color in the printed version, inform us immediately. Color art that is not deemed scientifically necessary by the editor can be printed in color at the author's expense.

Page charges are voluntary; payment or nonpayment of the page charges in no way affects the publication of this paper or other papers that may be submitted at a later date. If page charge funds are currently available to you through a grant that will expire shortly please let us know. We can send you an advance assessment based on a conservative estimate of the length of your paper in printed pages.
